STATEMENT PREPARED BY GO TRAVEL INSURANCE

RESPONSE TO CURRENT STATE OF EMERGENCY IN BANGKOK

Go Travel Insurance, a leading online travel insurance provider would like to inform those planning to travel to Thailand of the insurance implications in light of the state of emergency declared by Thai Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra.

Go Travel Insurance's Chief Executive, Christian Young said "Obviously we are concerned with the developments in the Thai capital this evening. We would urge all travellers due to arrive in Bangkok to monitor the situation closely as there are potential implications on any existing cover they may have. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office have already been advising against travelling in certain parts of Thailand, however following the coup on 19th September this may now extend to other parts of Thailand particularly Bangkok. It is key for those planning a trip to keep up to date with their insurer, the FCO and even their tour operator; travellers who ignore any advice not to travel will do so at their own risk and will not be covered by their insurance.

Go Travel Insurance would like to make it clear that we will discuss and update all our customers personally on any concerns they may have about travelling. A comprehensive information service is available on our website gotravelinsurance.co.uk

Go Travel Insurance is always working to look after our customers and respond to their needs and concerns. This customer focus and competitive prices are part of the reason that Go Travel Insurance is one of the fastest growing online and call centre travel insurance specialists in the UK & Ireland - operating 7 days a week."
